

Oral History

The research and resources from the Durham Miner and the Coal Mining Oral History Project websites have been transferred to the Durham in Time server. <http://www.durhamintime.org.uk/projects.htm>

The oral histories recorded as part of these projects have been digitised and will soon be archived in the County Record Office. The recordings will be available for the public to listen to next year (appointment only); but if you can't wait until then you can hear short extracts on our website. http://www.durhamintime.org.uk/Coal_Mining/recordings.htm

End of the Project

The Durham in Time project will officially finish at the end of November and, as it will not be possible for us to update the website in the future, all contact details and information that will become outdated will be removed from the community websites. The Durham in Time website will remain available so that anyone interested in the rich history of County Durham can continue to access the community archives.

At present we are organising a central location to hold the resources we have accumulated from past projects so that groups will still be able to borrow the display boards, mannequins and recording equipment.

...finally we would like to thank everyone who helped make this project so successful and we hope that, by attracting further funding, we will be able to work with you again in the future.
